NOTE ABOUT TAX RATES:

State corporate tax rates can vary significantly from one state to another in the U.S. The rates are often structured based on a percentage of a corporation's net income.

Below is a general breakdown of low, moderate and high corporate tax rate ranges.

NO CORPORATE TAX:

States with no corporate income tax have a tax rate of 0%. Corporations operating in these states don't pay state-level corporate income taxes.

LOW CORPORATE TAX RATE RANGE:

Low-tax states typically have corporate tax rates ranging from 0% to approximately 3%.

MODERATE CORPORATE TAX RATE RANGE:

States with moderate corporate tax rates typically have rates ranging from around 4% to 6%.

HIGH CORPORATE TAX RATE RANGE:

High-tax states tend to have corporate tax rates ranging from approximately 7% to 12% or higher.

State tax burdens aren't solely determined by tax rates; factors like deductions, credits, and tax code intricacies play significant roles in a corporation's actual tax liability. Moreover, graduated tax systems in some states mean higher effective rates for larger businesses as income increases. For the latest and most accurate information on state corporate tax rates, consulting state revenue departments or tax professionals is recommended. State tax policies evolve, with exemptions and incentives varying for different business types.

ENTERPRISE ZONES

As of November 2023, 45 states have enterprise zones. The number of enterprise zones in each state varies, with Louisiana having the most (750) and Arkansas having the second most (448).

The specific incentives offered by enterprise zones vary from state to state, but they may include tax credits, exemptions or abatements. These incentives are designed to encourage businesses to invest in and create jobs in economically distressed areas.

Here are some examples of the types of incentives offered by enterprise zones:

TAX CREDITS: Businesses may be able to claim tax credits for hiring employees, investing in property or sales taxes paid.

TAX EXEMPTIONS: Businesses may be exempt from certain taxes, such as property taxes or sales taxes.

TAX ABATEMENTS: Businesses may be able to reduce their tax liability by a certain percentage over a period of time.

Enterprise zones are typically designated by state governments, but the specific criteria for designation vary from state to state. In general, enterprise zones are in areas with high unemployment rates, low per capita income or slow population growth.

The following is a list of the 45 states with enterprise zones:
